

Browser Wars - The Dot-com Bubble (67-70)

BROWSER WARS

- 1991-1992: More areas set up web servers; Web browsers were also made [mainly universities]
- World Wide Web was academic
 - Browsers were text based [not easy to use]
 - Text>pictures
 - keyboard> mouse

Mosaic

- 1992-1993: Marc Andreessen & Eric Bina made Mosaic [National Center for Supercomputing Applications, University of Illinois]
 - Mosaic was better & easier than earlier browsers
- 1994: Jim Clark proposed that Andreessen & Bina form a business, UoI objected bc they said Mosaic belonged to them

Netscape

(Microsoft is here also)

- Andreesen & Bina founded Netscape Communications
 - Sep.1994: Made Netscape Navigator [Free for user, but corporations are charged a license fee]
- MS were making Windows 95
 - Did not require MS-DOS to be pre-installed

Statistics of Netscape Navigator

- End of 1994: there were 10K web servers online
 - Jun. 1995: there were more than 20K web servers
 - End of 1995: Netscape Navigator had 15M downloaded
-

Internet Explorer

- Microsoft planned to release online service [non-Web-based]
 - Internet Explorer[not as good as Netscape]
- Microsoft licensed source code of Mosaic from Spyglass
- Netscape & Microsoft raced to be best browser[Browser Wars]
 - Both have unique extensions to HTML
- 1998: MS tried to implement IE in Windows98
 - Corporations didn't need to buy IE
 - Netscape lost the Browser War
- Netscape released code[lead to Mozilla]

“Website creators would have to decide which browser’s extensions to support”

Search Engines

The Yahoo! logo, featuring the word "yahoo!" in white lowercase letters on a purple square background.

- Help users find good info[crucial to good web browsers]
 - YahooJerry Yang & David Filo
 - people made list of good sites[took longer as Web expanded]
 - GoogleLarry Page & Sergey Brin
 - Computer program made the list for them
 - links to other pages = relevant info
 - 2000: Google placed text ads based on search results

I thank you

for